Art at Bridgeview: For members who want to explore their creative side, art classes and writing circle are offered each week. We're proud of our state-of-the-art studio. Through drawing, painting or clay – members can give physical form to emotions, dreams, memories and concerns that cannot be expressed with words. Visiting guest artists provide instruction in watercolor, clay, and a variety of other art forms.

Writing Circle sessions, which are member led-cover memoir, poetry, short stories, and other writing forms. Bridgeview Artists and Writers are encouraged to share their works at art shows and exhibits throughout the Twin Cities, including Sister Kenney and Artability. At least twice a year, the public is invited to an Open House at Bridgeview where artists show and sell their work.

All art supplies and/or funding for supplies are provided through donations and philanthropy.

Bridgeview is Anoka County's only drop-in center for adults living with serious and persistent mental illness. It is one of the many mental health programs offered by Lee Carlson Center for Mental Health & Well-Being, a 501 © 3 non-profit impacting the lives of over 6,000 individuals, families, and caregivers each year.
